Sheet music is the format in which songs are written down. Browse music starts with empty music staff paper consisting of graphs that have five lines and four spaces, each representing a note. Songwriters who compile songs in standard musical notation use staff paper to create sheet music, which can then be transferred to musicians who interpret the sheet music for a music performance. Today, making your own page music is easier than ever. With notation software such as Final, or the free web-based Noteflight service, anyone can change their musical ideas into professional music pages. Use Noteflight to get started (see Resources). Noteflight is a free web-based music notation service that allows you to write, print, and even save your page music as music files for playback. Noteflight has a clean, easy-to-use interface that allows for even a beginner to create a song in sheet music. Since Noteflight allows you to listen to what you have written, you can experiment with different notes until you create something that sounds good, even if you're not familiar with music composition. Create a Noteflight account and log on to start creating your sheet music. You can immediately start writing your song. At the top of the page, click New Score to create a blank sheet music document. Choose whether you want your sheet music private or shared. Noteflight provides you with a blank music sheet in the Key of C with a 4/4 time signature. Click Edit title at the top of your sheet music, and type the name of your song, and then click Edit Composer and type in your name. Make any changes necessary for your key signature or time signature on the Score menu with either the Convert Time Signature or Change Key Signature command. Add notes and rest to your sheet music by clicking on the empty music staff. A note appears, and you can drag and click where you want the note to appear. You can also use the floating palette to choose different note duration. As you insert your notes, Noteflight will automatically reformat your sheet music to keep the right number of beats per bar. To listen to what you wrote at any point, go to the Play menu and select the playback option you want. Print your sheet music when you finish composing your song. The result will be a professional score of your song composition. You can also use Noteflight to make an audio file of your composition. Noteflight allows you to assign actual tool sounds to the appropriate parts. Go to File and select Export to save your final sheet music as an MP3 or wav file. This allows you to take an example recording to your tape. Last updated on September 2, 2020 Personal finances could push someone to the point of extreme anxiety and worry. Easier said than done, planning finances are not an egg intended for everyone's basket. That's why most of us often live pay cheque to pay cheque. But has someone told you that it actually isn't a difficult to achieve your financial goals? In this article we will explore ways to set financial goals and actually meet them with ease.4 Steps to set Financial Goals All setting financial goals may seem to be a challenging task, if one has the will and clarity of thought, it is pretty easy. Try using these steps to get you started. 1. Be clear about the objectives Any purpose without a clear goal is nothing more than a pipe dream, and it can no longer be true for financial matters. It is often said that savings are nothing but deferent consumption. Therefore, if you spare today, then you need to be crystal clear about what it is for. It can be anything, including your child's education, retirement, marriage, that dream holiday, fancy car, etc. Once the goal is clear, put a monetary value to that goal and the time frame. The important point on this step of goal setting is to list all the goals you provide in the future and place a value for each one. 2. Keep goals realistic it is good to be an optimistic person, but being a Pollyanna is not desirable. Similarly, while it's a good thing to keep your financial goals a little aggressive, going beyond what you can realistically achieve will certainly hurt your chances of making meaningful progress. It is important that you keep your goals realistic because it will help you stay the course and keep you motivated throughout the trip. 3. Account for Inflation Ronald Reagan once said: Inflation is as violent as a cup, as frightening as an armed robber and as deadly as a hitman. This quote sums up what inflation can do your financial goals. So account for inflation when you place a monetary value on a financial goal that's far in the future. For example, if one of your financial goal is your son's college education, which is 15 years from now, then inflation will increase the monetary burden by more than 50% if inflation is a mere 3%. Always count for this to avoid falling short of your goals. 4. Short term Vs Long Term Just as each calorie is not the same, the approach to achieving each financial purpose will not be the same. It is important to bifurcate goals in short-term and long term. As a rule of thumb, any financial objective due in the next 3 years must be mentioned as a short-term objective. Any longer expensive goals should be classified as long-term goals. This bifurcation of goals in short-term vs long term will help in choosing the right investment tool to achieve them. By now you should be ready with your list of financial goals. Now, it's time to go everyone out and reach them. How to achieve your financial goals when we talk about chasing any financial purpose, it's usually a two-step process: To ensure Savings Make smart investments You will need to save enough and invest those savings wisely so that they grow over a period of time to help you achieve goals. Ensure Healthy Savings Self-Realization is the best form of realization, realization, unless you decide what your current financial position is, you are nowhere on the way. This is the focal point of where you start your journey from achieving financial goals. 1. Track Expenses The first and most important thing to be done is to track your spending. Use any of the cost tracking mobile apps to record your expenses. Once you start doing it diligently, you'll be amazed at how small expenses contribute to a large amount. Also categorize those expenses in different buckets so you know which bucket eats most of your salary check. This record holds will paves the way for cutting unwillable expenses and pumping your savings rate. If you are not sure where to start when tracking expenses, this article may be able to help. 2. Pay yourself first, savings come after all the expenses have been taken care of. This is a classic mistake when seting financial goals. We pay ourselves last! Ideally closed, it should be planned upside down. We must first pay and then to the world, i.e. we should take out the planned savings amount first and manage all the expenses of the rest. The best way to actually implement this is to place the savings on automatic mode, i.e. money that flows automatically into different financial instruments (mutual funds, retirement accounts, etc.) each month. To take the automatic route will help us release certain control and force us to manage what remains over, which increases the savings rate. 3. Make a plan and vow to stick with it learning to create a budget is the best way to get to the uncertainty that financial plans always hold. Deciding in advance how spending should be OrganizedNowadays, various money management programs can help you do it automatically. At first, you may not be able to stick to your plans completely, but don't let it be a reason why you stop budgeting completely. Use technology solutions you want. Explore options and alternatives that allow you to make use of the available wallet options, and select the one that suits you most. Over time you get used to using these solutions. You'll find that they make it simpler for you to follow your plan, which would have been difficult different. 4. Make Save a Habit and not a purpose in the book Nudge, authors Richard Thaler and Cass Sunstein advocate that, in order to achieve any goal, it should be broken down into habits since habits are more intuitive for people to adapt. Make savings a habit rather than a purpose. While it may seem to be inconsistent for many, there are some deft ways to do so. For example: Always eat out (if any) during weekdays rather than weekends. Weekends are more expensive. If you're a travel buff, try traveling during the off-season. You will spend significantly less. If you're going to shop, always check out for coupons and see where you can best deal. The main point is to take the action leading to savings rather than on the savings itself, which is the Focusing on the outcome will bring the sense of sacrifice, which will be harder to sustain over a period of time. 5. Talking about it sticking to the savings schedule (to achieve financial goals) is not an easy journey. There will be many distractions from those who are not aligned with your mission. Therefore, in order to stay the course, surround yourself with people who are also on the same bandwagon. Daily conversations with them will keep you motivated to move forward. 6. Maintain a Journal for some people, writing helps a lot to make sure that they achieve what they are planning. If you are one of them, maintain a proper journal, where you write your goals and also jot down the extent to which you managed to meet them. This will help you in reviewing how far you've come and what goals you've met. When you have a written commitment on paper, you're going to feel more energetic to follow the plan and stick to it. Moreover, it's going to be much easier to track your progress. Making Smart Investments Savings by themselves takes no one too far. But, savings, when wisely invested, can do wonders. 1. Consult a Financial Advisor Investment does not come naturally for most of us, so it is wise to consult a financial advisor. Talk to him/her about your financial goals and savings, and then seek advice for the best investment tools to achieve your goals. 2. Choose your investment tool Wisely. No to know that your financial advisor will suggest the best investment tools, it doesn't hurt to know a bit of ordinary people, such as a savings account, Roth IRA, and others. Just as no one was born a criminal, no investment tool is bad or good. This is applying that tool that makes all the difference. As a general rule, for all your short-term financial goals, choose an investment tool that has debt nature, for example fixed deposits, debt mutual funds, etc. The reason for going debt instruments is that the chances of capital loss are less compared to equity instruments. 3. Composite is the eighth wonder Einstein once noticed about compound: Composite interest is the eighth wonder of the world. He who understands it deserves it... He that is not... Pay it. Make friends with this wonder kid. The sooner you become friends with it, the faster you will reach closer to your financial goals. Start saving early so that the time is on your side to help you bear the fruits of compound. 4. Measure, Measure, Measure us all well when it comes to earning more per month, but fails miserable when it comes to measuring the investments and taking stock of how we do investments. If we don't measure progress at the right times, we shoot in the dark. We won't know if our savings rate is appropriate or not, or the financial advisor is doing a decent job, or moving us closer to our target. Measure everything. If you yourself, ask your financial adviser to do so for you. Do. Do it! Managing your extra money to achieve your short and long-term financial goals and leading a debt-free life is doing so for anyone willing to sit in time and effort.
